29th International Conference on Organometallic Chemistry
Prague Congress Centre | July 17–22, 2022

WELCOME LETTER

On behalf of the Organizing Committee, we cordially invite you to the 29th International Conference on Organometallic Chemistry (ICOMC-2022), which will be held in Prague, Czech Republic, on July 17–22, 2022. ICOMC 2022 is aimed to provide an opportunity to present and discuss results from all fields of modern organometallic chemistry in an international and friendly environment. The scientific program will be organized in parallel sessions, focused on various aspects of both traditional and newly emerging areas of organometallic chemistry and related fields. Student attendance will be supported by reduced fees and the students will be given a chance to showcase their results during poster sessions.

At the moment, when the situation in the entire world is still complicated by the outbreak of the COVID-19 pandemic, mutual contacts between scientists from all fields were minimized. We sincerely hope that the situation will be resolved soon and strive to organize a meeting that will bridge this gap and, in keeping with the long tradition of the prestigious ICOMC conferences, will serve as a platform for an intense exchange of new results and ideas in the field of organometallic chemistry and the related areas among researchers from all over the world.

Looking forward to meeting you in Prague,

Best regards,

Aleš Růžička and Petr Štěpnička
Conference Co-chairmen
